Postgraduate Programme
"English Language, Linguistics and Translation"

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS TO THE POSTGRADUATE PROGRAMME, SPECIALIZATION:

'LINGUISTICS: THEORY AND APPLICATIONS'

The Faculty of English Language and Literature will admit candidates to the Postgraduate Programme "English Language, Linguistics and Translation", Specialization: Linguistics: Theory and Applications, whose courses begin in October 2023. The duration of the programme is three academic semesters and attendance of the courses is compulsory. Successful completion of the Postgraduate Programme leads to the award of a Master of Arts (MA).

MA in English Language, Linguistics and Translation
Specialization: Linguistics: Theory and Applications
Number of admissions: 15 (fifteen) maximum

The following candidates are eligible for admittance to the MA:

- (a) Graduates of English Language and Literature departments of Greek universities.
- (b) Graduates of other departments of Greek universities, provided that they demonstrate they have sufficiently covered basic fields of Linguistics. A certificate or other evidence of excellent knowledge of English is also required.
- (c) Holders of an equivalent degree from equivalent and recognised departments of foreign universities in related subjects which adequately cover basic Linguistics subjects. A certificate or other evidence of excellent knowledge of English is also required.
- (d) Students completing the 8th semester of studies provided that they submit a certificate of completion of studies before the start of the programme.

It is noted that the teaching, assignments, presentation of papers, written and oral examinations and the MA Thesis are conducted in English.

Criteria for candidate selection

Selection criteria are:

1. Success in the written exam (pass mark: 6/10) and the performance of the candidates in the written exam (70% of the total marks). The examination syllabus is announced in the Study Guide uploaded on the Faculty's website during the application period of new postgraduate students.
2. The performance of the candidates in the oral exam (30% of the total marks), with questions on the examination syllabus, in which those who pass the written examination participate.
3. BA grade "Very Good". A lower grade may be accepted if candidates have a "Very Good" grade in courses or a BA dissertation relevant to the Postgraduate Program, or if they have acquired a second degree, another postgraduate title, research experience or have written a detailed research paper.
4. The following qualifications are taken into account with respect to the final mark of the oral examination (5% of the oral examination mark):
 - a. Grades of undergraduate courses relevant to postgraduate specialization.
 - b. Experience with scientific projects relevant to the postgraduate programme (e.g. seminars, participation in research projects, publications, etc.).
 - c. Excellent knowledge of the English Language is mandatory. Good knowledge of other languages is appreciated;
 - d. Recommendation letters;
 - e. Relevant professional experience and knowledge of new technologies.
